Community Invited to Free Energy and Water Saving Workshop Hosted by KUB

KUB will be hosting a free energy and water saving workshop that is open to the public on Tuesday, October 29. The hour-long workshop features demonstrations of steps that can be taken to reduce electric and water usage and impact your monthly utility bill. Each attendee that completes the hour-long workshop will receive a kit with materials to aid in utility efficiency. The kit is valued at $40 and contains LED light bulbs, caulk, faucet aerators, and more.

The event is limited to 65 attendees. KUB asks those who wish to attend the workshop to preregister either online or by calling KUB (see details below). Attendees must complete the full workshop in order to receive their kit, and the workshop will begin promptly at 6 p.m. and last one hour. Following the workshop, there will be additional KUB informational booths on topics like KUB's materials reuse program and how to access your online advanced meter portal.

Date: Tuesday, October 29, 2019

Time: 5:45-8 p.m. (workshop 6-7 p.m.)

Where: City of Knoxville Public Works Service Center

3131 Morris Avenue

Knoxville, TN 37909
